End-to-End Trial Support

Skadden's trial team combines exceptional strategic insight with technical precision. Our multidisciplinary consultants work seamlessly with our litigators to strengthen every phase of the trial process — from early case assessment and client presentations to regulatory hearings, arbitrations and courtroom advocacy.

We work with our trial support consultants to develop powerful case narratives, test and refine arguments, prepare witnesses for testimony and translate complex concepts into persuasive visuals that resonate with juries and judges. Our trial consultants also orchestrate all aspects of courtroom logistics, ensuring that every presentation, exhibit and piece of data is delivered flawlessly and with impact.

Data-Driven Jury Strategy

Understanding how jurors think — and how they decide — is central to winning at trial. Skadden's jury research efforts apply behavioral insights, data analytics and real-world testing to help our litigators craft arguments that connect. Drawing on a proprietary database of thousands of juror questionnaires, we evaluate potential jurors and test case themes well before the first day of trial.

Our services include:

- Focus groups and mock trials that simulate real courtroom dynamics
- Theme and message development based on juror feedback
- Witness preparation that anticipates juror perception
- Data-driven jury profiling and selection strategies

Precision Trial Management

Our trial support consultants manage trial logistics with meticulous foresight, overseeing every operational detail, from pretrial filings and exhibit lists to technology coordination and trial schedules. At the courthouse, they run the "war room," handling production requests, vendor relationships, contract negotiations, budgets and real-time communication with client teams. Their work ensures our trial teams remain focused on advocacy.

Visual Storytelling

Persuasive visuals shape how a case is understood and remembered. Skadden's trial graphics team creates presentations that simplify complex issues and reinforce key arguments. Whether developing demonstratives for expert testimony or animated timelines for opening statements, our designers and technicians deliver visuals that help judges and juries grasp even the most technical subjects, reinforcing the credibility and clarity of Skadden's advocacy in the courtroom.

We are widely regarded as trusted commentators and advisers on the most consequential issues facing today's corporations, financial institutions and market participants, including D&O insurance carriers and industry-leading mediators. Our insights have been featured across leading publications — including The American Lawyer, Reuters, Law360 and others — and we have been tapped to represent organizations such as the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and SIFMA in filing amicus briefs that influence the trajectory of securities law.

Proprietary Publications and Signature Events

Our commitment to thought leadership is reflected in our flagship quarterly publication, Inside the Courts, which provides an authoritative, practitioner-focused view of significant securities decisions and trends in federal and state courts across the country. Drawing on our deep experience and ability to distill complex rulings into practical takeaways, the report is a go-to resource for in-house counsel navigating fast-evolving litigation risk. Our dedication is further demonstrated through our annual securities litigation webinar, where our partners highlight the year's most notable case developments and decisions, offer practical guidance on emerging risks and provide an inside look at where securities litigation is headed next.

Leadership Roles Across the Securities Litigation Ecosystem

We play an important role in advancing the institutions and professional bodies that influence securities litigation. Our team includes the co-chair of the Cambridge Forum on Securities Litigation, an exclusive, closed-door convening of prominent members of the securities bar, designed to foster sophisticated dialogue about the issues redefining securities litigation. The practice also includes a representative on the Standing Committee of the Federal Judiciary, which evaluates all prospective federal judicial nominees, including nominees to the U.S. Supreme Court. Additionally, our partners hold key leadership posts, such as chairing the Securities Litigation Committee of the Federal Bar Council, and are active members of the American Law Institute, contributing to influential legal scholarship. Together, these roles reflect Skadden's deep engagement in advancing policy, doctrine and best practices across securities litigation.
