

Calling all university undergraduates and graduates seeking to pursue a legal career in social welfare

What?

In 1988 Skadden established The Skadden Fellowship Program in the U.S. which has been extremely successful over the last 30 years. The Fellowship Program, described by commentators as a "legal Peace Corps" and a "public interest law firm without walls," provides two-year Fellowships to talented lawyers to pursue the practice of social welfare and poverty law. Currently, there are approximately 800 former Skadden Fellows, 90% of whom remain in public service, with almost all of them continuing to work on the same issues they addressed during their Fellowship projects.

In 2020, Skadden's London office expanded the concept by setting up the Justice First Skadden Trainee Programme, known as the JUST Programme. The JUST Programme is administered by The Legal Education Foundation's (TLEF) Justice First Fellowship scheme, which funds training contracts within a not-for-profit organisation that promotes social welfare law. Trainees subsequently qualify as solicitors in the sector.

Under the JUST Programme, Skadden sponsors one trainee selected each year through TLEF's Justice First Fellowship scheme by providing funding to TLEF for the duration of the trainee's two year training contract. The selected trainee will have the opportunity to train alongside Skadden attorneys in relevant areas including family law and human rights, and receive funding for ancillary training support costs. They will also benefit from networking opportunities with the Skadden London office, the U.S. Skadden Fellowship network, and the existing JUST Programme trainees.

Why?

The JUST Programme not only provides an entry point for the brightest undergraduates who wish to pursue a legal career focused on social justice to train in a sector that desperately needs new advisors, but it also directly assists indigent communities that JUST Programme trainees will serve in the course of their training.

When?

- Applications for the 2023 cycle of the JUST Programme will close on 6 January 2023.
- Applicants will be notified of the initial selection no later than 20 January 2023.
- Interviews to follow between 27 January – 10 February 2023.
