Robert A. Fumerton is an experienced trial lawyer who represents a broad spectrum of U.S. and international clients in high-stakes complex litigations and arbitrations around the world. He has represented companies and individuals across a wide variety of industries and disputes, including high-profile commercial, securities, sports and gaming litigation.

Mr. Fumerton's work has spanned across an extensive number of representations, earning him a place on Lex Machina's list of the top 10 most active securities litigators in the U.S. He has been repeatedly named to Chambers USA, in which clients have noted that he is "a great litigator" who is "really sophisticated and smart" and "incredibly effective at cross-examination." Clients in Chambers also have commented that he "understands not only how the case is being presented but how it is being perceived." Mr. Fumerton also has been repeatedly honored as Litigator of the Week by The American Lawyer and as one of Lawdragon's 500 Leading Global Litigators and 500 Leading Lawyers in America. In addition, he has been recognized as a Rising Star by both the New York Law Journal and Law360, one of five securities litigators in the country under 40 to receive the Law360 recognition at the time. Mr. Fumerton, who at the age of 32 became the third-youngest partner in Skadden's history, is a member of the firm's Compensation Committee and was previously the hiring partner for the firm's New York office.

Mr. Fumerton's representations include:

- UBS in the first-ever residential mortgage-backed securities action brought by a trustee to go to trial. In the unprecedented trial in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York — in which the trustee was seeking more than $2 billion in damages — Mr. Fumerton delivered the closing argument and conducted the majority of the examinations, including the cross-examination of the plaintiff's central expert, which received extensive media attention
- the underwriters of two multibillion-dollar global note offerings for Petrobras, the largest government-owned oil company in Brazil, in an action alleging securities violations based on highly publicized corruption and bribery allegations surrounding the Brazilian government
- Yahoo! in Southern District of New York and U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit proceedings against Microsoft. Yahoo! sought to vacate an emergency arbitration award granted to Microsoft concerning a strategic alliance between the two companies under which Yahoo! would migrate its search advertising services to Microsoft's "Bing Ads" platform in various markets worldwide
- FanDuel, Fanatics and Caesars in a class action challenging the legality of the District of Columbia's sports betting law
- FanDuel in securing the complete dismissal of a putative consumer class action in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois
- a National Football League Club in a complete victory in an arbitration brought by its former head coach over whether the Club had contractual cause to fire him — only the second time in National Football League history that a Club has successfully fired a head coach for cause
- former LSU Coach Brian Kelly in securing a full payout and termination without cause from LSU after filing a lawsuit in Louisiana state court

Mr. Fumerton has published several articles in prominent legal publications, including "Market Overreaction and Loss Causation" in The Business Lawyer; Vol. 62, which advocated for a novel application of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act's "bounce-back" provision — an approach that has been cited by several publicly traded corporations in major securities litigations.
