Deborah Kirk is head of the firm's intellectual property and technology transactions practice in London. She counsels clients across a range of industries on protecting and commercializing their intellectual property and data assets.

Deborah regularly guides clients in navigating the complex, regulatory landscape involved with intellectual property, technology and data-related aspects of M&A, private equity and technology transactions (with particular experience handling large, complex carve-outs).

Drawing on her deep knowledge of complex technical and legal issues, including in connection with IP and commercial due diligence, Deborah provides holistic and commercially astute guidance to clients. Her perspectives are gleaned from representing both buyers and sellers in matters involving an array of commercial arrangements, and enable her to anticipate potential challenges in complex transactions and guide them to completion.
