Ken Ryan advises corporations, financial sponsors and investment banks on a broad range of New York and English law capital markets and leveraged finance transactions in the European and U.S. markets, with a focus on high-yield bond offerings.

Mr. Ryan counsels on acquisition financings, bond offerings and private placements, syndicated loan financings, private capital lending transactions, liability management transactions and restructurings across an extensive range of industries.

He also represents market participants in matters in the fintech sector and those involving digital assets and blockchain technologies, with a focus on financing and corporate transactions. Additionally, he has experience counseling on structured finance transactions, including infrastructure/utilities acquisition financings, whole business and mortgage-backed securitizations, various loan portfolio financings and esoteric derivatives transactions.

Mr. Ryan also counsels on a variety of social finance and pro bono transactions, and has advised on a number of public and private debt financing packages to support charitable initiatives in the United Kingdom, European Union, Latin America and sub-Saharan Africa.

Prior to joining the firm, following his training at a leading Irish law firm, Mr. Ryan worked at a top U.S. firm and a Magic Circle firm in London. Mr. Ryan has completed two secondments to J.P. Morgan, most recently to the capital markets desk in London, focused on European and cross-border high-yield bond and leveraged loan transactions. In recognition of his work, Mr. Ryan has been noted as a Rising Star of European Finance by Financial News and a Rising Star for Capital Markets: Debt by IFLR1000.

Notable representations, including prior to joining Skadden, have included advising:
