Michelle Scheffler is an experienced trial lawyer who represents clients in bet-the-company cases in state and federal courts nationwide.

Ms. Scheffler has been repeatedly honored by several leading industry outlets, including Chambers USA, in which clients have praised her as a “very skilled trial attorney” who has “instant credibility with the judge and jurors,” as well as “exceptionally talented” and “an extremely knowledgeable and confident trial attorney and leader.” She also has been repeatedly recognized by The Legal 500 and Benchmark Litigation, in addition to being named a Thomson Reuters Stand-Out Lawyer in 2023 and one of the nation’s top energy attorneys under 40 by Law360 in 2021. In addition, she has been selected as one of the National Diversity Council’s Top 50 Women in Oil and Gas.

Ms. Scheffler represents clients in a variety of industries, though she has extensive knowledge of the energy industry and has led trial teams for oil and gas, renewables, pipeline and marketing clients concerning nearly every aspect of the energy value chain. She regularly handles matters related to royalties, leases, surface rights, transportation, storage and distribution. Additionally, she advises clients on matters related to joint ventures and partnerships, construction-related disputes and environmental issues.

Ms. Scheffler is a recent addition to the Skadden trial team. Her representations prior to joining the firm include serving as:

- Lead trial counsel for a major integrated oil and gas company in a three-week jury trial following a fire and explosion at a petrochemical facility which resulted in a favorable settlement before the defense put on its case-in-chief
- Lead trial counsel for an energy client in a monthlong jury trial defending against numerous personal injury claims after a plant explosion, bringing alleged damages down by over half
- Lead trial counsel for an oil and gas client in an alleged royalty underpayment case brought by the state of North Dakota. This case had an industry-wide impact in the state and went up to the North Dakota Supreme Court twice. Ms. Scheffler won a take-nothing judgment at trial on behalf of the client against the state
- Lead trial counsel for numerous oil and gas producers in putative class action cases alleging underpayment of oil and gas royalties
- Lead trial counsel for an oil and gas producer against a retail electric provider in a case related to power contracts and reimbursement of under-usage credits
- Trial counsel for wind and solar companies against various personal injury and property damage claims in multidistrict litigation arising from winter storm Uri
- Trial counsel for a natural gas marketer against a pipeline company and power producer in cases related to marketing and transportation agreements and gas sales in both state and federal court
- Trial counsel for a midstream company in bankruptcy court to uphold gas gathering agreements against oil and gas producers
