Julie Turner advises the firm, its lawyers and its personnel on issues involving ethics, firm policies, conflicts, hiring, internal controls, compliance and litigation.

Prior to serving in this role, Ms. Turner practiced in Skadden's Government Enforcement and White Collar Crime Group, where she conducted internal corporate investigations, advised corporate clients on compliance issues, and represented individual and corporate clients in federal and state criminal and regulatory matters, including those brought by the Department of Justice, the Securities and Exchange Commission and state attorneys general.

Ms. Turner serves on the boards of the National Center for Access to Justice and The Legal Aid Society's New Leadership Program. Additionally, she received the 2009 Commitment to Justice Award from inMotion for her pro bono work.
