

LIST OF ECONOMICALLY CRITICAL GOODS (Version of 24 February 2025)

The EU and its international partners responded to Russia's war of aggression against Ukraine since 24 February 2022 with massive and comprehensive restrictive measures. The sectoral sanctions aim at curtailing Russia's ability to wage the war, depriving it of critical technologies and markets and significantly weakening its industrial base. Regulation 833/2014 imposing sanctions against Russia includes prohibitions to sell, supply, transfer or export, directly or indirectly, goods which could contribute to the enhancement of Russian industrial capacities.

Therefore, in 2023, the EU introduced the Economically Critical Goods list of sanctioned industrial-purpose items and is in addition to the Common High Priority list¹. However, as the full-scale invasion progressed, Russia has become a war economy, and its industrial complex directly or indirectly supports Russia's military efforts. At the same time, new circumvention routes emerged, and Russia secured alternative suppliers for certain industrial products. Given these developments, it became necessary to refine the initial list of 2023 to better align with current trade flows, enhance its efficiency and precision.

The updated list includes goods that Russia still relies on from the EU, even if it also sources them through third countries. The List includes 30 Harmonised System (HS) codes, covering the following HS chapters: 73 (Articles of iron or steel), 84 (Machinery), 85 (Electronics), 87 (Vehicles), and 89 (Ships, boats and floating structures).

The List may support due diligence and effective compliance by exporters as well as targeted anti-circumvention actions by customs and enforcement agencies of partner countries determined to ensure that their territories are not being used for circumvention of EU sanctions purposes.

Additionally, trade statistics are continuously monitored to identify trends and update the composition of the Economically Critical Goods List.

This List replaces the previous October 2023 version.
